Horsemen's Roundup Sunday

A chuckwagon breakfast will be served from 8:00 a.m. with roping competition beginning promptly at 9:00. At 12:30 p.m. there will be a parade through Carmel Valley Village.
Admission for the day is $1 for adults, 50¢ for juniors--children under 8, free.

Meet-Your-Neighbor Night

Mid Valley To Hear Silberstein

All Valley residents or property owners between Descanso Oaks and the Farm Center area are cordially invited to a Meet-Your-Neighbor night to be held at Carmelo School next Wednesday evening, August 12, at 8:00 p.m. For the youngsters, there will be movies (also baby-sitters) intended to divert while parents hear Mike Silberstein, author of the recently published report on the Feasibility of Incorporation for Carmel Valley, explain his work and answer questions from the audience. A social hour will follow, with refreshments to be served by the Mesdames Lee Jewell, Robert Harris, and John Anderson.

The evening is sponsored by the Mid-Valley Property Owners Association and has been planned by John Anderson, a member of the Mid-CVPOA board of directors, during the absence of recently elected president Ariel Lane.

Lane, a retired naval commander now teaching at Carmel Junior High School, has been taking education courses at the summer session of San Jose State College, but returned early this week and will preside at the meeting.

The motion pictures will be provided by Kit Parker, Carmel High School student who for the past year has served as projectionist-film editor-entrepreneur for the weekly Saturday movie show for young people at the Carmel Valley Community Center. Kit and his committee of other teen-agers have by this means earned hundreds of dollars which they have donated to the community pool fund. The film to be shown next Wednesday night is a full-length adventure feature.

Via Mallorca Bridge Restriction Removal

The County Board of Zoning Adjustment will hear five applications from Carmel Valley at its next regular meeting August 11 in the Supervisors Chambers at the County Courthouse.

Hacienda Carmel through their attorneys have filed a request to amend their use permit and remove the restriction which forbids the use of Via Mallorca bridge by commercial vehicles. The application states that "objections of Via Mallorca residents to the bridge have now been settled," and that "vehicles driving up Via Mallorca and turning around at the bridge because of the restriction cause almost as much traffic as if they went through." The hearing is scheduled for 10:15 a.m.

An application by Harold Sand asks for parking space design deviation in connection with the present Town & Country Realty building and a new retail building contemplated next door at Village Drive and Carmel Valley Road. The time set is 10:10.

At 11:05 Lloyd Swanson's application for a guesthouse on his property in La Rancheria is scheduled, and at 11:10 that of Valley Hills Nursery for an addition to their open air space.

No Opposition

Ariel Lane, resident of Via Mallorca who has been active in the access controversy from its beginnings 3 years ago, told the Outlook this week that he and his neighbors will not oppose the application to allow all vehicles to use the bridge.

"We on the street decided that if we could get a settlement that would for the most part pay our expenses (for litigation), we might as well accept it. The condition of the settlement is that we do not oppose the lifting of the condition on their use permit. The Hacienda is established now; rather than continue the difficulty over the years, this seemed the best solution for all."

CARMEL UNINCORPORATED

Two renewals are requested: a reduction in building site area for a lot on Upper Waldron Road, Carmel Highlands, by George Hahn, and an off-site sign on Highway One near Ocean Avenue for Ralph Stean. A new application is that of Dan Burkleo to reduce to 10 feet the front yard setback of two lots on Upper Trail. This hearing is set for 10:50.

Editorial Comment

Humor Can Be A Big Help

To chronicle last Thursday's CVPOA board meeting in terms of motions passed and committees appointed would be like describing vintage rose wine merely as "pink liquid." The flavor was rare; some may prefer the word "aroma." But the evening must have puzzled many who apparently were new to the group--especially if these newcomers were unfamiliar with the cast of Carmel Valley Characters.

Before reviewing a few of the incredibly hilarious performances (even ye editor got into the act --see apologies at left), we would like to say seriously that we think three worthwhile objectives were accomplished:

1) The vote of confidence for George Brown, as elected head of the Valley's largest organization, reaffirmed his right to "speak for the Valley." Of course minority factions and individual dissenters have every right to be heard! But after witnessing the warm support shown Brown last Thursday evening, we do not see how they can seriously challenge his conscientious job of attempting to represent the majority or the fact that the majority appreciate it.

2) Although the antagonisms of the past few weeks have risen past the point of common sense, the excitement has at least brought forth many new members willing to take up the burdens which--as in any volunteer organization--too few have borne for too long.

3) The comic-opera atmosphere of last Thursday evening allowed many hostilities to be ventilated with what was probably, on the whole, a therapeutic effect. In other words, laughter can be healing!

For example: when Morden Buck leaped to his feet to declaim in clarion tones, "I challenge the right of anyone to say that he speaks unanimously for Carmel Valley!" no one rose to argue. Greeted only by joyous laughter, Mr. Buck re-seated himself looking faintly baffled.

Perhaps the choicest skit of the evening began when Luis Wolter attempted to make a motion that the CVPOA, to avoid future controversy, vote now to accept "whatever plan the County comes up with" - anent a slope-density formula for Alcan Pacific's proposed Del Mesa Carmel subdivision. Better known for his good humor and good will than for an articulate manner of speech, Luis had some difficulty in framing the motion.

When the group got a glimmer of what was meant, George Brown opined that the motion was out of order on the grounds that "you cannot waive the rights of people to appeal."

Lester Burdett, consultant to Alcan Pacific, then suggested dryly that if legal advice were in order, the group consult the "qualified legal counsel which is present."

Himself an attorney, Burdett nonetheless suggested the name of Joe Edelman, one of the speakers against the Alcan proposal at the supervisors' hearing the previous Monday.

"I am forced to agree with Mr. Burdett, probably for the only time in our lives," quoth Edelman. "Mr. Brown does not have the right to prevent a member of the board of directors from making a motion."

"But is the motion legal?" Brown wanted to know.

"Let him make it and I will then pass an opinion," said Edelman.

The audience by this time was collapsing into the aisles, and the fact that Luis now found himself virtually tongue-tied did nothing to make the situation appear more serious.

"It is not easy to think up the exact words of a motion in front of all these people," said Luis mournfully. "I had it all figured out last night. I couldn't sleep most of the night thinking about the problem."

"That's nothing, I couldn't sleep for 2 days," came sotto voce from somewhere.

When the motion was finally framed, the chair referred again to Edelman who agreed to offer what he called a "curbstone opinion."

"It would be like ordering a wife from a mail order company without the right to return her--even if she turned out not to be a female," he then told the group.

It would be fun to continue this recital, but space precludes further anecdotes now. One sticky question, raised by dissenter Ed Hogan (the other one) would seem to merit further delving--next week.

Such actual business as was transacted during the 2-hour hootenanny included the naming of Frank Bresk, Miss Bessie Irvin and Mrs. Nancy Strathmeyer to a committee to study the Peninsula Area Plan in its relation to the valley master plan and with relation to future parks.

Mrs. Mel Blevens, Tom Lutton and Mrs. John Sigourney were asked to bring in a report on the valley incorporation survey prepared by Michael Silberstein, and Dr. J. Zarski, Joseph Edelman and president Brown formed a committee to study feasibility of a taxi pickup road service between Carmel and the Valley. --BB

CONTRETEMPS

This tidbit is only for those who attended last Thursday's CVPOA meeting. To the many comic squabbles aired we contributed our share, and we're sorry.

CVPOA president George Brown, we believe, has for months done a remarkably effective volunteer job under difficult circumstances. Admittedly, we became quite exercised at Mr. Beverly Stover's attempt to embarrass Mr. Brown publicly. But we should not have attempted, similarly, to embarrass Mr. Stover!

Two wrongs, our gran'pappy used to tell us, don't make a right.

Our private opinion remains the same, but for the record we feel impelled to state that Mr. Stover, like any of us, has the right to be heard.

Sheriff's Blotter

On August 27 at 8:46 p.m. --during the Alcan hearing in the Supervisors chambers in Salinas, Supervisor Tom Hudson called the Sheriff's office to request that a deputy stop by because the "meeting was getting a little hot." Deputy Foster was sent, and on his return reported that "everything was quiet on his arrival." He stood by until the end of the meeting.

(Editor's Note: We think that our supervisor sorely misjudged the mood of those at the hearing. As evidence we have not only the report of the deputy (those present had no idea that the police were being called) but the very detailed reports which appeared in the Salinas Californian and the Monterey Peninsula Herald. Neither suggested the type of disorder which would necessitate police control. To be vociferous is a cherished American prerogative and hardly to be mistaken for unruliness.

As for Mrs. Dorothy Reed, Outlook reporter who was present, she found the Valley residents far less obstreperous than at many a planning commission hearing she has witnessed. It is significant that following Mrs. Reed's report of the Alcan hearing before the planning commission last month, a representative of that corporation telephoned from Sacramento to congratulate the Outlook on the objectivity of its news reporting on their case. --BB)

July 30 -- Melle R. Castagnola of Carmel Highlands, who is having a house built on Brookdale Drive, Rancho Canada, reported that a rear window of the structure was broken last week; the contractor replaced it. It was decided to report the incident when two more windows were found broken this week. The vandalism takes place after the workmen leave, in the afternoon.

July 30 -- David P. Marshall, manager of the Mobil station in Carmel Valley Village, reported that a pickup truck belonging to Clyde G. Lindberg of Hayward, which was parked in the station after being towed there, had two gauges removed two nights previously, and a radio removed the night before.

First Aid

Members of the first aid squad of the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department were called to Lower Circle at 6:02 p.m. Sunday, July 26, to treat two youngsters who were injured in a fall from a bicycle. Winifred Reuter, 5 years old was "hiking a ride" with Larry Hearn, 15 when the accident occurred. Winifred received lacerations of the arms, hands, mouth and nose. Larry had abrasions of the elbows and knees. They were transported to the hospital by relatives.

At 7:24, a single car accident involving five soldiers from the 561st Medical Division at Fort Ord occurred on the last Carmel Valley Road. The Carmel Valley first aid unit transported the men who were injured when their 1964 GMC pickup overturned to the Community Hospital where they received treatment and were then transferred to the hospital at Fort Ord. Injured were: Jim McClean, Clyde Lindberg, Melvin Johnson, Gary Reed, and Roger Gammons.

P.G.& E. Request To Supervisors

The County Board of Supervisors at their meeting August 10 will hear a request from P.G. & E. to rezone a piece of property adjacent to the Berwick Manor subdivision for use as a service yard. The Planning Commission recommended denial of the application and the Supervisors continued it two weeks ago. There has been strong opposition from nearby residents, and a concerted search is being made for a parcel of land which neighbors would consider suitable, and which would meet the company's specifications of location, area, and accessibility. The hearing is set for 10:30 a.m.

Also scheduled for 10:30 is an appeal by E. J. Thorndike whose application for extension of a tract office permit in Carmel Meadows was denied by Plancom.

A hearing will be conducted at 11:00 on a request for an ordinance requiring dogs to be leashed in Carmel Knolls.

ST. DUNSTAN'S MEETS SUNDAY IN NEW BUILDING

This Sunday, August 9, the congregation of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church in Carmel Valley will hold its first services in the new church building, located on Robinson Canyon Road just behind Farm Center, about six miles from the Valley entrance at Highway One. Until now the congregation has met at the Carmel Valley Community Center.

On August 9 the congregation, which has been meeting at the CV Community Center on Ford Road, will hold its first service in the new building.

Formal dedication ceremonies will wait until September, when Bishop Pike returns from New York. A reception will be held at that time.

The construction period has lasted about 4 months so far. It is expected that all furnishings will be completed and installed before the September dedication ceremonies.

CHANGE THAT FIRE DEPARTMENT NUMBER

To avoid confusion during the year, Carmelites are urged to correct an error which is printed in the new Monterey Area Telephone Directory. Under the section, "Carmel By The Sea, City of - " the telephone number listed for Fire Department Business is 624-3838, which is incorrect. It should read: Fire Department Business 624-1718.

Girl Scouts To Camp

Fourteen Girl Scouts from Carmel are enjoying the facilities of Camp El-O-Win on Dinkey Creek near Fresno. The camp, at 5500 feet elevation, is designed on lines prescribed by Indian folklore, and advanced campers are living in genuine teepees and Adirondack lean-tos, under completely primitive conditions. Younger girls have accommodations in A-frame cottages.

Horseback riding, pack trips, and dramatic presentations representing life in many countries are among the campers' activities. At a recent International Night, they wrote their own scripts and made their own costumes.

Chamber Appoints Committee To Study Incorporation Report

Paul Porter, William Wood, Mark Starr, Lou Gardner, Byington Ford and Luis Wolter have been appointed as a CV Chamber of Commerce committee to study the Report on the Feasibility of Incorporation for Carmel Valley which was published last month. Rex White, president of the Chamber, said that the group would elect its own chairman, and would conduct "quite a thorough study" before presenting conclusions and recommendations to the organization.

The report was compiled by Michael F. Silberstein, Coro Foundation Public Affairs Intern. His announced purpose, before the study was begun, was "to gather and present as many facts as possible, leaving to the people of Carmel Valley any decisions which might result." The Chamber financed Silberstein's 6-week stay in the Valley, where he has since obtained a job and elected to remain for the summer, entering law school next autumn.

The Chamber's Board of Directors will hold their monthly luncheon meeting next Wednesday, August 12, at Carmel Valley Inn.

Sunny Sunday Picnic

GEORGE T. C. SMITH PHOTOS

Children playing in and around the pool at Rippling River Ranch (former site of the Cowan School) on a recent sunny Sunday were those of scientists and staff assigned to the Fort Ord Research office of Stanford Research Institute. In all, about 150 attended the group picnic. With headquarters in Menlo Park, SRI has offices and projects in many parts of the world. About 50 of its scientists currently lend support to the field experiments of Combat Developments Command Experimentation Center (CDCEC),, now in its 7th year. Nearly all these families have purchased homes on the Monterey Peninsula.

On Sunday, July 26, they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cowan, who are now living at their new home-and-school near Grass Valley, Calif. Mrs. Cowan's cousin, Louis Schloss, is with SRI in Menlo Park.

PHOTOS: Mrs. Richard Custer, the former Myrtlerose Craig, is a lifetime Peninsula resident now married to an SRI scientist: she continues to perform in Little Theatre productions locally. With camera is personnel director Maurice Deatrick.

On the trampoline played Susan Pettijohn, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Pettijohn of Jack's Peak; Nina Alberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Alberts of Carmel: Timothy Reed, son of Dr. and Mrs. David Reed of Carmel, Jo Lee Alberts and Lisa Pettijohn.

Garden Thoughts

BY SALIH AND ALICE MEHDY
OLEANDER GARDEN SHOP

This is the time to take pity on your house-plants. They gave you a great deal of pleasure during the winter time, and now it is time to give them some in return.

They would like to see the outside world, too, so take them outside and give them a gentle bath with a fine spray of water, and place them in open shade or filtered sun according to their recommended exposure, but not in a windy spot. Fertilize them with a mild liquid fertilizer such as fish emulsion. The fresh air and warmth will soon make them perk up.

If you are going on vacation for a few days, and have no one to look after your house plants, it is better to take them inside the house until your return. Here is an idea for keeping them moist:

Take a one-gallon cider jug and place it on a box 6 inches high. Place your house plants around the jar. Fill the jar with water, and tear a piece of old sheeting material into strips about one inch wide. Wet these strips well. Put one end of this wick into the jar, all the way to the bottom, and insert the other end into the soil of the pot. Cover the exposed parts of the wicks with aluminum foil to reduce evaporation.

Plants must breathe; they do it through the leaves. Just like us. Dust chokes the leaves, so sprinkle them over once in a while to remove it. For plants susceptible to powdery mildew, spray them in the morning; try to avoid such overhead watering during the hot, sunny part of the day, because the leaves might be scalded.

Do roots breathe, too? Yes, they do, and they have less access to air. That is why drainage is very important. If there is a spot it your garden that does not drain well, that means that the spaces between soil particles are filled mostly with water, and there is less oxygen for the roots to breathe. Then these vital parts of our plants cannot perform their job properly, and they become prey to fungus attack. To avoid this, heavy soils should be broken up with soil conditioners.

$2995 To Cancer Fund

Residents of Carmel Valley contributed the sum of $2995.16 to the recent American Cancer Society Crusade announced Dr. James A. Mattison, Jr. president of the organization.

"Contributions are still trickling in," Mattison told the Outlook, "and though our basic goal of $48,300 has been surpassed, we have hopes of equaling the heart-warming total of $55,000 which we raised in 1963. This was the largest amount ever raised by the Society in Monterey County.

Mattison expressed the Society's deep gratitude for the response and assured donors that one third of the funds raised are being forwarded immediately into research fields in a vigorous pursuit of a cure for the disease.

The budget committee of the Society has also begun allocating funds locally for the support of Tumor Boards, aid and services to cancer victims, service projects and an accelerated cancer education program.

Eastern Visitor

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Durham of Upper Circle are enjoying the visit of their granddaughter, 11-year-old Laura Lee Durham, from Moonachie, New Jersey. Laura Lee came out by jet from the east coast, unaccompanied. She is taking swimming lessons and enjoying the Carmel Valley pool.

First Grandchild

Mr. and Mrs. John Woolfenden are celebrating the arrival of their first grandchild, John Martin Spence, son of their daughter, Joyce. Betty hurried off to San Diego to assist at his homecoming. Both grandparents are honored in the baby's name, as his grandma's maiden name was Martin.

DEVELOPMENT PLAN FOR HIGH MEADOW
CARMEL LAND COMPANY, OWNER
HALL AND GOODHUE, ARCHITECTS AND PLANNERS

Award-Winning Subdivision Gains Plancom Approval

High Meadow Subdivision, a 345-unit project of clustered homes and dedicated green space, received a go-ahead signal from the county Planning Commission last week after seven years of delay caused by uncertainty as to the route of the proposed freeway.

Its location, east of Highway One between Rancho Mar Monte and the various Carmel Hills subdivisions, can be seen on the map above. The network of roads in the upper left corner includes the Carpenter Street interchange with Highway One, and the southernmost property shown is part of the Carmel High School campus. The straight line at the right is a county property line known as the "eastern boundary of Lot 2 partition of the Hatton property;" it was adopted in 1957 as the demarcation line between suburban and rural building areas. Extended southward, it forms the boundary between Carmel Knolls and Rancho Rio Vista, and all land east of it zoned one-acre minimum building sites.

As the usual lot size in Carmel is 10,000 sq. ft. and constitutes what the county considers an urban standard, High Meadow was planned as a transitional buffer between urban Carmel and rural Carmel Valley. Lot sizes were assigned according to a formula based on gradient of land, requiring lots at 20-40% slope to be twice the basic module in area, and lots above 40% grade to be doubled again. The number of houses indicated by this formula was then grouped into clusters in order to put a scenic easement on about 2/3 of the area and to preserve essentially all of the trees on the site.

The land so dedicated remains private and will belong to the homeowners, but the easement prevents it from being further subdivided or developed in any way. The subdivision plan won an award for excellence from Sunset Magazine in 1961 and has been cited since by several architectural magazines.

Besides the Special Treatment zoning, the property was classified R-1-B-6, (single family residential,) with lots as specified on the subdivision map, the open space was placed in an O classification. All rezonings go to the Board of Supervisors for confirmation and then require a 30-day waiting period before the application for a use permit can be approved. Any controls or restrictions which the Planning Department wishes to put on the subdivision will be written into the use permit.

Take It Again From The Top

SUMMER BAND has produced one of the liveliest if occasionally dissonant classes in the Carmel Adult School this season. Organized to keep instrumentalists of all ages in practice with sight-reading sessions once a week, the group has accommodated duffers as well as experts.

"Even if you don't think you can play, come and watch the notes go by--" Director John Farr was quoted by a junior high schooler, who added his own comment of highest praise, "It's a crack-up!"

The group meets for the last time this Thursday; in the fall the adults will go back to teaching or the symphony, the youngsters to their various high school bands.

Besides the guiding hands of Mr. Farr at the extreme lift, the Junior High's J.W. Larson assists on percussion, and F. K. Duhring plays first clarinet.

Carmel Citizens Committee Looks At Future

Although "very pleased" with a meeting held on July 24 to discuss the subject of annexation, Admiral C.W. Fisher felt that it left matters "very much in the air." Admiral Fisher is chairman of the Carmel Citizens Committee which prior to the meeting had mailed to its 400 members a booklet dealing generally with the feasibility and advantages of annexing to Carmel the outlying unincorporated areas.

Although some 90 people attended the meeting, intended to sample community opinion, the discussion showed less knowledge of the booklet's contents than he had hoped, Admiral Fisher explained. Consequently, he may use the 11-page publication, "The Carmel Citizens Committee Looks at the Future of our Community," as the basis of a second meeting which would also be a study session, he said.

The pamphlet delineates a natural unit for a single city, bounded by Pescadero Canyon and Del Monte Forest on the north, the ocean on the west, Carmel River on the south, and "a natural location for greenbelt areas on the east," i.e., the underdeveloped land beyond Rancho Rio Vista and the Junior High School. Fifteen geographical areas totaling 1,211.7 acres are recommended for annexation, adding 2,703 registered voters to Carmel's present 3,035, and raising its assessed valuation by $14,658,095.

The purpose of unification would be "a strong single community dedicated to the conservation of scenic resources, the retention of its residential character, and the special charm that is Carmel." Most of the discussion at the meeting, however, centered around the topic of increased fire and police protection in the annexed territories to offset the anticipated tax increases. These would range from 90-1/2¢ to $1.34 per $100 assessed value depending upon the area under consideration and the number of special districts in which it now participates.

The Citizens' Committee booklet includes a summary of the tax picture, an estimate of the added costs of city government which would be caused by annexation of all 15 areas, and a digest of the steps involved in annexation.

City Clerk Hugh Bayless has said that accomplishment of an annexation would take the batter part of a year. It would have to be initiated by 25-50 qualified voters in an area contiguous to the city and must gain the approval of the City Council, the County Annexation Commission, and a majority of the voters in the area to be annexed.

The initial edition of the pamphlet has been exhausted, according to Admiral Fisher, but if enough interest is expressed, the Committee might consider a second printing. Requests may be sent to P.O. Box 1101, Carmel.

Other officers of the Citizens' Committee are Col. Arthur H. Black, executive vice-president and treasurer; Mary Vickrey, secretary; Chester Coulter, Charlotte Townsend, Dorothy Chapman, Leonard J. Fletcher, and Rawlins I. Tileston, directors.

MPVS DONATIONS

A representative of the Carmel Youth Center will receive a check from the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services for proceeds from the Thrift Shop July 20-31, at a presentation Friday, August 7, at the LaPlaya Hotel.

After a business meeting at 11:00 and luncheon at 12:30, a second ceremony will present to the Visiting Nurses Association the proceeds of the 13th annual House and Garden Tour held July 15. Owners of the residences visited on the tour will be guests of honor at the luncheon, and members of the MPVS Hospitality Committee will act as hostesses.

During the business meeting, members will decide upon the allocation of funds to be raised at the annual Flea Market, shceduled this year for October 7.

PENINSULA AIRMENS ASSOCIATION FLY-IN PARTY

The Mesdames "Stormy" Carlson and Dorothy Goodman, both members of the MPAA - in excellent standing - performed Hawaiian dances for 60 members and guests of the organization who "flew in" to Carmel Valley airport last Sunday. Festivities were poolside at Los Laureles Lodge. "Stormy," who is MPAA secretary, and her husband, Bud Carlson, were hosts and provided most of the entertainment.

Mrs. Goodman is the wife of Dee Goodman, Monterey manager of Pacific Airlines. MPAA would like to extend special thanks to Wester Motors of Monterey which, contrary to erroneous announcements made elsewhere, rpovided a courtesy "taxi" wagon between the airstrip and the lodge for the arriving pilots.

Reviews of the Bach Festival

by Mary Lindsay-Oliver

TUESDAY (Continued)

Tuesday evening's program was a real highlight, starting with a trumpet solo by Edward Haug of the San Francisco Orchestra. He held the audience spell-bound, as did Eudice Shapiro in her happy rendition of the Bach Partita in B minor. Norman Farrow of the N.Y. Art Group, in Bach's Cantata No. 82, was as commanding as his stature. The Haydn Symphony in C major was a thoroughly artistic performance by the Festival Orchestra, and following thunderous demands Salgo repeated the minuetto--much to the joy of all.

WEDNESDAY

The joint performance of cellist Joseph Schuster and pianist Ralph Lindsley in the morning was one of the finest of the festival.

On the program were an Adagio by Johann Christian Bach, the Suite in C Major by Johann Sebastian Bach, a Boccherini Sonata and a Haydn Diveritmento in D Major. Encores at the audience's insistence were a Corelli Adagio and Variations by Schubert on a Theme by Corelli.

Shuster, who has not been here for the past eight years, reestablished his superlative strength and musicianship. Feeling, nuance, and depth of tone brought out interpretations that deeply stirred and captured all. Linsley's work on the Steinway generously lent by Mrs. Milton Shutes contributed a perfect balance; his attitude is self-effacing but his playing is always scholarly and effective.

We certainly hope they will be heard together again next year.

While the midnight concerts at the Mission were discontinued for many years, their restoration is a joy to all. The historical setting is impressive—the color, the candle light, the beauty of the pageant with red velvet robes trimmed in ermine against the sober dignity of the old building whose wonderful acoustics were there in the days of the Indians. William Byrd's work, "The Great Service," considered the greatest piece of music of the 16th century, was interpolated with the Dettingen Te Deum by Handel, as a commemoration to Shakespeare, and was appropriately and effectively performed in front of the chancel by the Chorale, the Festival Orchestra, and Altman at the organ. At midnight as the mission bells sounded the hour, the music finished and the audience filed silently out to the candle-lit garden.

THURSDAY

A symposium on Handel's oratorio "L'Allegro ed il Penseroso", to be performed that evening, occupied the morning. Moderator Alexander Fried, Music Critic of the San Francisco Examiner, Raymond Kendall, Dean of USC Music School, and Virginl Whitaker, Dean of graduate studies at Stanford, greatly enlightened the audience with their discussion of Milton's poem and Handel's subsequent treatment of the arguement for a cheerful outlook on life as compared with a pensive view.

In the afternoon, Altman presented, in his second organ recital, five old French pieces, Bach's Prelude and Fuge in C Minor, and selections from 18 great chorales, ending, as always, with Bach's last composition dictated to his

Review:

Liz Matesky Shows Promise

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

Attendance at the first of the Valley's Summer Concert Series was my first visit to the rustic Barn Theatre, and brought realization of having missed much of the Peninsula's younger enterprise in the Arts.

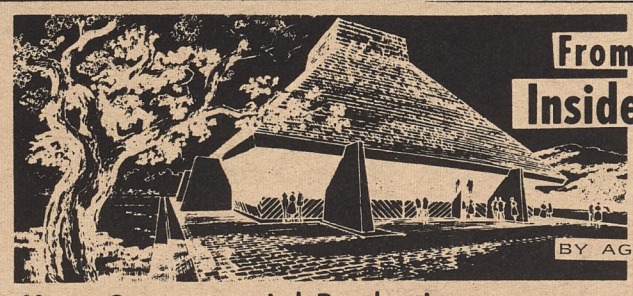
White Oaks is due serious consideration in its efforts toward new horizons! Operated by a group of wide awake young people, White Oaks has scheduled many up-to-date musical and dramatic events. There are 18 on the theatre staff and 18 on theatre production--headed by the intrepid Sally Hughes Church, "guiding spirit" and instigator of the soon to be completed new theatre building.

Liz Matesky, young violinist from the Jascha Heifetz master class at Southern California University, sometime pupil of Shapiro who charmed the recent Bach Festival audiences, and shortly to leave for London to study at the Royal College of Music, presented Beethoven, Brahms and Bach Sonatas and a modern one by Anthony Vazzana. She proved to be a talent that could go far when more solidity has been gained, especially in her bowing which sometimes lost tonal focus.

While Violin and Piano Sonatas have equality of instrumental parts, Matesky was handicapped by brilliant pianist Neil Stannard who dominated too much with the piano lid up. It was down, however, for the final Brahms-given with greater balance and earning several recalls.

The Bach, executed alone, also gave a better idea of the artist's capacity and poise. The Brahms left the audience admiringly happy after the disturbing thumps, squeals, dissonance and erratic phrases of the modern sonata! Fortunately, that kind of composition is not going to intrigue much longer -- a better is on the way!

Because of a cancellation for August 5th, the next concert will be on Sunday, August 16th at 2:30. Carol Plantamura, soporano, and William Wells, pianist. Meantime the Three-Penny Opera is on until August 9!



From The Inside - Out

BY AGNES GOOCH

Most Controversial Production

Varied reactions of our audiences to the current production, "Three Penny Opera", make it one of the most, if not the most controversial play we have ever produced. Each performance finds some people walking out on it, and just as many ecstatic about it. People seem to hate it or love it.

The one thing both sides seem to agree on (we modestly admit) is that the production is staged beautifully and most professionally. The play itself causes quite an uproar and here are some of the comments heard:

One man told us that he never misses seeing the play wherever it is performed, and thought this one of the finest productions he had yet enjoyed. Yet this same man saw a trio in the audience shake their heads in dismay shortly after the curtain rose; they left after the first act.

Saturday night was the largest house in White Oaks history. One couple drove all the way from San Francisco -- and back -- just to catch the performance.

Following the first act, I heard a middle-aged couple conversing as follows: The man, "I can't take it!" The woman, "Well, we're here!" The man, "I don't care, I can't stand any more of this." The woman, "What are we going to do, go back to the motel and go to bed again?" They left.

A person who had seen the premire performance in Berlin in 1928, admired the production here, felt the play was not dated, and that the way our director's interpretation was exactly what Weill and Brecht intended.

Wherever "Three-penny" plays, the same people return again and again. It seems that no matter what the reaction, people feel compelled to talk about the play. David Drew, in an article about Weill and the "Opera" says, "The peculiar violence of the reactions suggested that this success was more complex than it seemed. Such passions are only aroused when a work combines an attack on sacred conventions with an unprecedented positive content of its own. (See the other article on "Three-Penny" for Brecht's view.)

We won't attempt here to give you the reasons for all the controversy. Why don't you come down to the theatre yourself and form your own opinion?

WHAT DO CARTOONISTS DO ON A TV SHOW? They answer questions about the Western Cartoonists Convention (which was held last weekend in Santa Cruz.)

What do cartoonists do at a convention?

"They discuss problems, like why their golf scores are not lower," explains Bob "Better Half" Barnes.

"I was wondering about that myself," admitted Frank "Short Ribs" O'Neal (left). The television appearance depicted was the High Noon Show of KSBW, Salinas; the lady emcee is Florence Seedman; the gentleman at the right is Eldon Dedini.

And just to make the whole affair even less logical, the Western Cartoonists Convention was held this year in conjuntion with the Annual Optimists' Soquel-a-rama. That's right!

'Three Penny Opera' In Final Week

Entering its third and final week of production at Carmel Valley's White Oaks Theatre is the musical drama, "Three-Penny Opera". This international favorite was written by the much discussed Berholt Brecht with music by Kurt Weill.

Brecht at all times was a poet concerned with the movement of ideas, who contrived to break loose to some extent from orthodox theatre productions. Where more traditional productions are designed to put the audience into an uncritical frame of mind, Brecht felt it was the function of the audience to stand back from the play and think for itself.

Also, Brecht attempted an appeal to reason instead -- as is the case in orthodox theatre -- of launching a direct assult on the viewer's emotions. Furthermore, each audience had to be stung into awareness by the spectacle evolving and had to use all its faculties. Thus songs are interpolsted into his dramatic structure. In "Three-Penny Opera" the songs haul more than intrinsic value, but rather serve to heighten the text.

It is these ideas that have helped to make "The Three-Penny Opera" the success it is today. Originally produced in Berlin in 1928, it was immediately translated into many languages. Although it was a failure as first produced on Broadway in 1933, it has been drawing packed houses off-Broadway for seven years.

This musical drama is playing Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening in the rustic barn theatre located behind the Village Post Office. Reservations may be made by phoning the box office, OLive 9-2248.

Television Application For Carmel Rancho

Carmel Broadcasting Company, Inc., has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for a new UHF television station to operate from Carmel Rancho Shopping Center on 596-602 megacycles (channel 35) with power of 45.7 kilowatts daytime and 18.08 kilowatts nighttime, and an antenna height of 290 feet above ground.

Proposed location of the transmitters is described as "5 miles east of Carmel and 5 miles north of Carmel Valley Road."

Officers, directors, and stockholders of Carmel Broadcasting Company are listed as Sam W. Smith, Myrtle S. Smith, Harold Apger, Sam E. Smith and Donald H. Smith.

The elder Smith Sam S.), owner of Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, was reluctant to discuss with the press any details of the projected TV station beyond those of the application, which is a matter of public record.

"There's many a slip between cup and lip," he said, "and I believe the best time to announce a new project is when it is an accomplished fact." Carmel Boradcasting Company now operates radio station KRML.

BIG SUR CHILDREN' S WORKSHOP

"The Little Lyric Theatre of Big Sur," Gene Perrine's drama workshop for children, will present two plays on August 8 at 2:30 p.m. and August 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the Big Sur Grange Hall as the climax of a summer of work and fun.

Since June 30, students from Carmel Valley who were chosen to participate have been transported twice a week to join students at Big Bur. Valley mothers organized a car pool to afford their children the opportunity to help initiate what -- it is hoped -- will be an annual project.

Productions chosen for presentation are a Chinese play, "Chain of Jade" and a Greek play, "Echo". The latter was written by the children. Costumes for both have been designed and made by Eva Ross of Big Sur.

Participating from Carmel Valley will be Shawn Davis, Ronnie and Elaine Bennett, Kim Buckenroth, By, Tim, and Chet Cordrey, Laurie and Lindy Doud, Greg Drew, Peter and Greg Granoff, Michelle and Gary Holmes, Marvin Huss, Mikelle Korver, Mindy Rayne, Sidney Richards, Sara Senger, and Robby Woods.

Adult tickets are $1.00.

CV Golf Club Applies For Beverage License

Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club has applied to the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control for issuance of an alcoholic beverage license.

Garden Club Potluck

Members of the Carmel Valley Garden Association will convene at the Trail and Saddle Club grounds on Sunday, August 9, at 5:30 p.m. for a "World on Your Dinner Table" potluck party. Program Chairman Bessie Irwin has planned a scientifically cosmopolitan menu, with members requested to bring special viands which originated, botanically, from all parts of this planet. (For example, the club bulletin explains, wouldn't Popeye be surprised to know that spinach is a native of Iran?)

Whatever dish a member prepares, he or she must also prepare to discuss the origin of its ingredients. For research assistance, vice-president Dorothy Durham is leaving her copy of "The World in Your Garden" at the library of the Oleander Garden Shop.

FOLLOWING LAST WEEKEND'S CONNIE MACK TOURNAMENT, Sports Editor Bob Holmes was sacked out (he is also pitcher of the Tri-City team) but recovered just in time to bring in the sad report which is printed below. The team is pictured above. Great guys, and great sports, too, according to their loyal local following.

Monterey Drops Two in Double-Elimination Tournament

Tri-City got off to a good start in the Hanford Tournament Saturday by defeating Mt. Whitney 7-1. Bob Roberts pitched that game, giving up 5 hits while striking out 13. He also starred at the plate with a 2-run homer.

In Monterey's game against Hanford Sunday, pitcher Anthony Cordoza proved to be overwhelming as Monterey got only one hit off the right-handed hurler. Gene Johnson, who got the only Tri-City hit, was a pick-up from Salinas. John Sipin, another Salinas player, made several fantastic plays for Monterey. Bob Holmes took the loss for Monterey, giving up 8 hits, striking out 8, and walking 2. Monterey committed 9 errors.

Directly following the Hanford game, Monterey was pitted against Mt. Whitney again. This time, Monterey came up on the short end, in more ways than one. Tri-City led 8-6 at the end of four innings of play, but Mt. Whitney came back to win it 9 to 8 in the last three innings of disputed play.

The average temperature for the three days of trounament play was a sweltering 97 degrees.

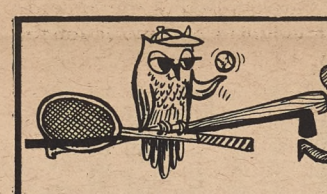
SUMMER JOB? If you do well, you'll have a once-a-week job after school all year long. Boys and girls are needed to sell copies of the Outlook, also subscriptions, in Carmel as well as Carmel Valley. Call Mrs. Brown at 624-6722 any evening (after dinner).



SPORTS-WISE

BY BOB HOLMES

An interesting sidelight at the new Carmel Valley Pool is the diving instructor, Channing Miller. Channing provides pool-goers with her excellent diving instruction and her vivacious personality. We are glad to have her with us and we hope to have her back again next year!

Hyperventilation is a swimmer's technique for building up his oxygen supply by rapid breathing in order to stay under water for longer periods of time. This practice can result in blacking-out and possible death by drowning. If you practice hyperventilation, beware not to overdo your rapid breath intake. This information came to us from Dr. Malcolm H. Merril, State Health Director.

There are many people in the area that explore trails on their small (or large) motorbikes. Unless extreme caution is used, sparks from the exhaust may start a fire in the tinder-dry brush in the area. Please be careful!

Home from a thrilling trip to Denmark is former Valley -ite, Mrs. George (Lilli) Selvig. Lilli, who at one time danced in all of the major European cities, in the company of the Royal Danish Ballet was invited to attend a two week combination Ballet and music festival and seminar. She danced in two classes and observed the rest, involving famous people of the world of ballet, students, and teachers. The high point of the trip was attending graduation exercises of the Royal Ballet Academy.

Traditionally, restricted to the 12 judges and those students participating. A friend arranged to have a chair smuggled in for Lilli which afforded her a ring side seat of the entire proceedings.

The Selvigs, who formerly lived in Robles Del Rio, are now at home in a three bedroom expando house trailer located on the Post Ranch down Big Sur way. George is a teacher at Captain Cooper school.

pupil from his deathbed -- "Thy Throne I Now Approach." Its profound beauty was sympathetically interpreted by Altman.

The Handel Oratorio was sung in the evening by six outstanding soloists, Carole Boaard, Richard Kramer, and Archie Drake for L'Allegro and Kay Shipley, Carolyn Stanford and Evelyn Sachs for Il Penseroso. All carried their parts with distinction and Drake, a basso, was particularly powerful and expressive.

FRIDAY

The chamber concert Friday morning was another outstanding event. James Schwabacher's always expressive voice first presented song of the Old English by Thomas Morley, a pupil of Byrd, accompained by Colin Sterne on the lute. Next came French songs of the 17th and k8th centuries, and with tenor Tommy Goleeke, duets for two equal voices by Monteverdi. The chamber orchestra composed of Louise di Tullio, Raymond Duste, Charles Meacham, Ellen Dressler and Ralph Linsley, brought down the house with their exquisite rendering of the John Christian Bach Quintet in D major.

The concerts on Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday were all duplicates of last week and already reviewed, but I could not resist returning for the last part of the B Minor Mass with its jubilant and inspiring finale! This gave me an opportunity to stand with the rest of the audience in tribute to all the participants. Also honored were Priscilla Salgo and Ken-Ahrens, assistants to the director.

Having been on hand to report every Festival since 1954, I think I may be safely quoted--the beautiful setup of the illustrated program and its notes by Edward Colby of Stanford University should have been a souvenir of everyone who came. Credit is due the officers who made all arrangements, especially Manager Michel MacKay and stage manager Mel Taylor. The dedicated spirit behind it all is that of Sandor Salgo, whose vision, programming, and dynamic conducting have faithfully upheld the Ideal to all. We now look forward to next year.

MC FADDEN SPECIAL

Saying "Happy July" to the Dean McFadden household on Sage Road is just the same as saying "Happy birthday" since both of the McFaddens, their children and most of the relatives on both sides of the family celebrate during the month The children's parties began with Mike who became 7 on July 5. A family party marked "his" day with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Perry coming from Monterey as special dinner guests.

Last week, a beautiful pink cake with angeles and six candles wa served to the guests of Denise. with angels and six candles was served to the guests of Denise. Attending her party were Stephen and Vickie Van Hagen, Graham MatthewsIII, Diane Golden, and Mike, Tim and Stacy McFadden.

The next day it was party time for the McFadden 5 year old, Tim, whose cake was chocolate and decorated with Japanese boys. His guest list included: Cynthia and Steve Mauzey, Steve and Vickie VanHagen, Laura, Steve, Denise, Matt, and TimmieSherman, Kim and Weegee Graham, and Tim's brothers and sisters.

Many Happy Returns, McFaddens!

Book Reviews by Ragnhild C. Williams

Both "The North Cascades" (The Mountaineers, Seattle) and "Tomorrow's Wilderness" (Sierra Club Publications) are very handsome from the point of view of format and photography, and the text are timely as well.

We have all seen in our times the disappearance of orchards, redwoods, supposedly protected wild regions, and wild life. Even for the safety of towns and people, a great deal of thought and action should be given to this subject. Many public and private concerns are doing a valiant job, as these books attest. But, in the last analysis, who is really responsible for preserving what we still have for future generations? The voters must express their views to their Congressmen, their Senators, and even to the President.

Books for Young People

THE LONER, by Ester Wier, illustrated by Christine Price (McKay, ages 12-14, $3.75).

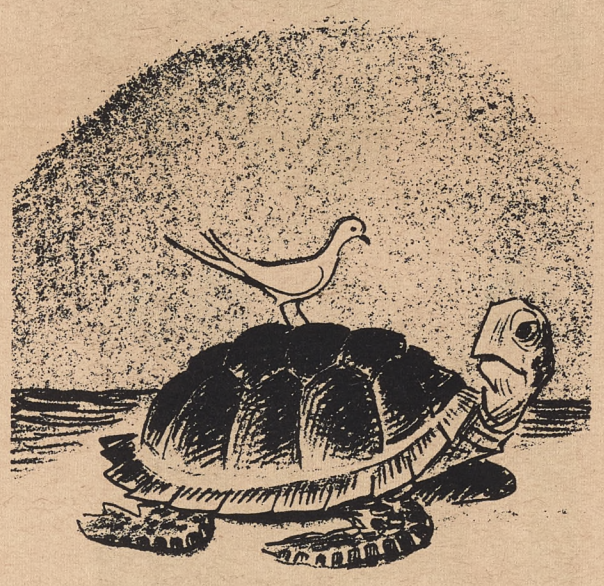
This book was a runner-up for the 1964 Newbery Award. Any boy in his teens who hasn't read it has definitely missed a good story.

Ester Wier, the author, who has lived in California and the west for a number of years, writes a stirring account of a young "loner" -- a boy who had no family or friends, and who as far back as he could remember, had been a crop picker, half-starved, thin, without even a name. The one person who had shown any interest in him was killed accidentally when her hair was caught in a farm machine.

The author gives a vivid picture of the miserable life of the crop pickers, of their selfishness and utter disregard for others -- for mere survival.

After his friends death, the boy is found by some sheepherders on his lonely trek to California. For the first time he acquires a name and learns about loyalty and friendship. The life of a sheepherder is equally well described.

This is a thought-provoking book, and one that will be read by both boys and girls in their teens.



FROM "THE TURTLE AND THE DOVE" BY DON FREEMAN (PUBLISHED BY THE VIKING PRESS)

FROM AMIGO BY BYRD BAYLOR SCHWEITZER ILLUSTRATED BY GARTH WILLIAMS MACMILLIAN CO., PUBLISHER

A MONKEY'S TALE, by Nathan Kravetz, illustrated by Susan Perl (Little Brown, ages 8-10, $2.75).

There are far too few really humorous books for either adults or young people. This tale is quite hilarious, but at the same time based on accurate scientific facts and details of astronauts.

How an American monkey in a space capsule saves an actual Russian astronaut is a topic that only a writer with lots of humor and imagination could project.

The black and white drawings are more in the vein of cartoons than most illustrations for this age group; but they are appropriate to an amusing story.

THE TURTLE AND THE DOVE, by Don Freeman, illustrations by the author (Viking, ages 4-7, $2.50).

Don Freeman is a favorite with young people, ever since his "Pet of the Met", "Fly High, Fly Low", and many other books that have delighted children and adults alike.

This is a quiet, persuasive story of a friendship between a dove and a large sea turtle. Both get caught in a storm at sea; but they find each other again many months later on an island, when they have both accumulated families.

The drawings in soft blue and gray are delightful, and will have great appeal to the very young.

AMIGO, by Byrd Baylor Schweitzer, illustrated by Garth Williams (Macmillan, ages 5-7, $3.95).

A book of great charm for the youngest age. Its rhythmic verse is well adapted to reading out loud. The theme is also unique: adopting a little wild prairie dog for a pet.

Garth Williams, noted for his beautiful illustrations for the Laura Ingall Wilder books, E. B. White's "Charlotte's Web", and many others, has done some fine and sensitive drawings for this outstanding book.

RAGNHILD WILLIAMS, who reviews books for the New York Herald-Tribune and the San Francisco Examiner, with her husband, Clarence T. Williams, is spending the summer in Carmel Valley. The Outlook is proud and happy that she will review books for us this summer.

Coming next week (an all-star local cast): Mrs. Williams' review of Betty Antoncich's just-published first novel, laid in a Carmel Valley Setting -- "The Cliffhouse Mystery."
